IMPERIAL STEAM COOKED HORSE FEED is made of whole corn and oats steam cooked and kiln dried. Most horsemen are convinced of three things before they begin to use Imperial Steam Cooked Horse feed, its SAFETY, HIGH NUTRITIVE VALUE and its HIGH DIGESTIBILITY. It is very high in DIGESTI-BLE NUTRIENTS and is surely PRODUCTIVE OF ENERGY and MUSCLE. INDIGESTION and COLIC are unknown troubles when your horses are fed on this diet. Water less than eight per cent, fiber less than four per cent, carbohydrates seventy-two per cent. It takes about 2,300 pounds of raw grains to make a ton of Imperial Steam Cooked Feed which is put up in one hundred pound sacks, running about one hundred quarts to the bag. It takes three bags to a horse to give it a fair trial and watch results. For sale by

Something to Be Thankful For. When you can try with all your might To make the problem come out right, And fail, and try again:— When you can fall and feel the smart Of bruised flesh and wounded heart, And rise, and run again:—

When you can speak with fair intent And hear it was a lie you meant, And still speak true again:— When you can smile in midst of fears Which force all weaker souls to tears, And bravely smile again:— Then you may truly thankful be, Strong in a brave humility. The turkey is a wonderful bird and one ought to be sorry to see him beheaded. He feels so good, when the most of us feel so bad, that it is a shame for the depressed to eat the joyful. Perhaps it is all right, however, for the depressed right name were not bad enough. Worse depressed to eat the joyful. Perhaps it is all right, however, for the depressed seem to feel better after the meal. Perhaps it's a case of the part strengthening the part, and mankind cannot get too much joy in this hard old world.

But, ob, a turkey does feel so good up to the very day of Thanksgiving! Did any one ever see a depressed turkey? He is a swell and an actor. He is also religious and a Bible reader. St. Paul has nothing on him, for no man can observe him and not admit that love is observe him and not admit that love is correct we must admit the latter, because the greatest thing in the world to him; they are all cuttings of the old original and it lasts all his life.

See him strut, swell out his breast and distend his comb; spread out his feathers and scrape the ground with his wings. It gives him an awful front, but people enjoy it on Thanksgiving day. It's the whitest thing about him.

The hen turkey is rather a mild bird. She watches the gobbler. She knows She watches the gobbler. Brought Indians to Feast The first Thanksgiving at which Indians participated in this country, according to the well-known chronicles Edward Winslow, took place in 1621, ten months after the landing of the The Companion Home Calendar for Pilgrims, when, the crops being garnered, they felt spring up within their hearts a feeling of praise and thanksgiving. They dispatched a messenger to invite Massasoit, sagamore of the Wampanoags, and 90 of his warriors to attend the celebration, which lasted almost a week. On the appointed Thursday Massasolt and his warriors urrived and the little settlement gave the Indians a hearty welcome. All May Rejoice

The relative who received this letter, and who is the writer of this article, remembers hearing the father of Henry O. Thayer; whom the older citizens of the town of Paris will remember as "Uncle Ziba," say the same thing, that he, too, had voted for eighteen Presidents of the United States. It is doubtful if the town of the United States. It is doubtful if the town of the United States. It is doubtful if the town of the United States. It is doubtful if the town of the United States. It is doubtful if the town of the United States. It is doubtful if another similar instance can be found, where two men, father and son, reached such an extreme age, and always had such good health as to enable them to vote for eighteen Presidents.

Those residents of Paris who cannot remember "Uncle Ziba," may think of him as the man that set out the large and beautiful elm tree in Market Square in the village of South Paris, for he dug tup from his land down on the Oxford road, and carried it on his shoulder and set it in the Square, where for several generations it has grown and increased in beauty for the delight of all who may see it.

> Take Time for Church On Thanksgiving morning there are few women of taste and feeling who do not attend divine service in some church or other. They may be finely dressed and they may indulge in any number of gayetles afterward, but that little hour or so with the sermon that tells you about your blessings, those few moments with comforting prayers and triumphant songs must begin the day. The sentiment pervades all communities, large or small, be the persons involved steady churchgoers or only occasional worshipers. One cannot seem exactly an ornament to society or a useful citizen without paying some respect to the religious aspect of the national holiday.--Exchange.

Health in the Home in Winter. Besides the warming and lighting of be house in winter, there are two other hings which it behooves its mistress to consider: ventilation and keeping the air moist. These should be thought of s insurance against winter colds. Pure air is more needed in our homes n winter than in summer, both because we are more confined to the house, and we are more afraid of open windows. To keep the air, especially in sleeping rooms, so fresh and sweet that on enter-ing the rooms from a walk around the block no difference in the sweetness of the air is perceptible, should be a prob-lem to be of necessity solved by the house-mistress. The need to keep the air moist is a matter too often unthought

The cold air of winter, whether out-ofdoors or in, holds less moisture than the warm air of summer. In our artificially heated houses the air is generally still drier than it is outside, and this dry air is thirsty for moisture. It is so thirsty that it will take moisture from everything in sight—from furniture and woodwork, which will warp and shrink; from leather upholstery, lamp mats, and bookbindings; from food, and worst of all the dry air will steal moisture from you from your hair, your finger-nails, and your skin. The first will lose its gloss, the second will be brittle, the third will act as though you were traveling in the desert. All this means that you will be more likely to take cold. You may keep the air moist by mean of pans of water on the radiators, or by having green foliaged plants a plenty in your rooms, or by the use of one of the many devices for humidifying the air, which are now on the market. If you run your house on a budget, you would do well to spend some of the money allowance under the heading "Health" or under "Higher Life," in the purchase of one of the small moisture meters, that Mat. 10c and 25c. Evening 15c and 35c. Mat. 10c and 25c. Evening 15c and 35c. are often made in connection with a thernometer, and that tell how much moistire is right for certain temperature. Moistened air is also an economy, for moisture is a better conductor of both heat and cold than dry air. You can hold your hand in an oven at a temper-Her Own Free Will." ature of 400° F. or more, when you could ot-bear it in boiling water at only 212°

F. The moist and muggy day in summer is intolerable, while you do not feel the heat when the air is dry. So in winter when the air in the room is dry, it will not feel warm even at 75 or 80 degrees, while, if properly humidified, i will be comfortable at 65 degrees. Take these things to heart, Madam Household Engineer, see to it you put them through this winter, and save pay-ing for colds and coal.

Common Sait as a Cure. About the handlest remedy to procure and apply is common salt; as an antiseptic it extracts the soreness and ache from affected parts. No hamlet is so remote that you can't get common sait, will last you for months. Common salt is a bracer for tired eyes. To illustrate, by my own experience, my eyes went on a strike. Everything strained them; gazing from the window of a street car or bus caused discomfort and had been thoroughly examined and refitted by him, it did not seem to be a to besiege the enemy, eyestrain, with salt and water. My oculist had told me that bathing the eyes in tepid, salted water would strengthen them, and at irregular and distant intervals I had sprinkled a little salt in the morning eyebath, now I determined to see what persistent use of this remedy would do. Six or eight times a day I bathed them

Six or eight times a day I bathed them in salted, lukewarm water, and kept it up for weeks. The hostile soreness yielded, gradually, and in about six weeks my eye-muscles were rested and strong enough for daily needs. Theater and movies, bus-riding, reading fine print by artificial light, a quick change of focus, no longer tired them. Now that my eyes are well again. I still continue bathing them in salt and water, though only twice a day, morning and night. My eyes stand almost continuous use, from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M.

my nostrils, and gargled my throat with it. In two days I had the better of the kind of a cold which usually pursues its painful course for several weeks, making one an object of self-loathing, and an to themselves. "Ha, ha, ha," they were Sait is a convenient remedy for travel-ng emergencies. Salted popcorn is said to relieve seasickness and carsickness. Salted warm water, applied externally, alleviates various local pains, including toothache. Salt is useful for clysters As a condiment salt can easily be over used, but as an antiseptic it is a practical friend in need. Keep a little sack of salt in your room, or in your traveling bag. It may help you at a critical moment. Denim is such a substantial material aud endures so much hard wear, without looking shabby, that it makes good material for drapes, cushion covers, in this barny table runners, furniture covers, etc.

Denim is the most durable of all cotton materials and does not fade in washing. The brown, when used with the right color combinations, will make artistic and quite rich looking hangings. Some handsome curtains seen had a border of appliqued velvet flowers of the same shade, ontlined with a heavy gold cord. The table cover matched, and there were pillow covers finished in the Denim will look better than cretonne in rooms that have patterned wall papers and rugs. Moveover, it washes much better, and really looks as if it were a more expensive material. Before using denim, it should be washed and boiled to take away the strong smell of the dye and make it more pliable.

What foolish thing to say—wait for what, I'd like to know?

Monday-Met Mr. Red Rooster this morning. 'Fine day, Mr. Rooster!" I said. "Don't you think I'm a pretty welldressed bird?" and I turned round and round to show him the sun shining on actually did. dinners was given a few years ago on the sandy, cactus-studded plains of northern Arizona, many miles from the nearest white settlement. The host was the Sante Fe Railroad company, and the guests were several hundred Navajo Indians. One of the queerest things about the whole afsurprise both to entertainer and entertained, and, although it was a very good dinner, and the Indians have not yet ceased being thankful for it, it is doubtful if any of them know that they really ate a Thanksgiving dinner. It was this way: Some time before daylight on Thanksgiving morning long freight train rumbled eastward through Arizona on the Santa Fe road. It was loaded for the most part with canned and dried fruit from the famous orchards of southern California, and it was due in Albuquerque about Just as it was passing out of Arizona north of the Zuni mountains is my feathers. Mr. Rooster sniffed—he ran through a broken bridge, and half a dozen of the freight cars left the track and went tumbling down an embankment, breaking open and spilling out their loads. The Navajo reservation is only a few miles away to the northward, and in the morning two or three Indians appeared on the scene of the wreck. They saw the broken cars and the canned fruit quietly they took some of it, and when they found that the trainmen were otherwise occupied they took a good deal more. Then they fished out the big, luscious, yellow peaches with crooked fingers and swallowed them as a boy would swallow an oyster, After that they drank the sweet sirup. When they could hold no more they carried the good news to other Indians; and straightway there was a rush from the reservation, and the expensive fruits intended for delicate palates of the East, made a rich Thanksgiving dinner for the Indians. But this was not all of the story. The Navajo Thanksgiving ended very desperately sick, and the medicine

The next day other Indians, who present at the great dinner, went down many empty cans, splinters of broken is patient. If such an accident happened to the white man's railroad once it might happen again, and so crows along the track waiting for another wreck and another feast. ## How Other Peoples Celebrate

Thanksgiving day in America began as a public rejoicing over a good harvest—the first reaped by the New England colonists. The idea is not peculiar to our people; probably they imbibed it from English customs or those, as old as history, which prevail in one form or another on the continent. Gratitude for plentiful harvests is the keynôte of these customs, although among us the day would probably be celebrated even if Governor Bradford had not started the observance in 1623 by that memorable Thanksgiving day when a long drought was broken. Different peoples have different times, but always some time, for harest thanksgiving. When the Jews inhabited Palestine the festival of Pentecost embraced a thanksgiving for a plentiful harvest; but as the wheat is not gathered in Europe at the time of the Pentecost, flowers take the place of the first fruits in the synagogues there. The Druids had their harvest festival on the first of November; the Chinese and Japanese have theirs at their year's close. The second of the three great festivals of the Jewish ecclesiastical year occurs on the sixth and seventh days of the third month (Sivan) which includes part of May and June. It is called in Hebrew, Shovuous, but more generally the feast of the Pentecost, the fiftieth day, since it commemorates the giving of the law to Moses on Mount Sinai 50 days after the deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt. It is also called the Feast of Weeks, because it marks the completion of seven weeks, counted from the second day of Peasch or Passover. In the famous temples of Ise, in the neighborhood of Yamada, are the shrines of the goddesses in whose nonor those festivals are held. There are two temples, the Naiku (inner temple) and the Geku or outer temple. The Naiku is sacred to the sungoddess, the great ruler of heaven the Geku is dedicated to the goddess of food, in other words, to the worship of a deification of the earth. Thousands of pilgrims resort an iually to these temples at Ise, beause of the pre-eminence of the godlesses to whom they are dedicated.

This sun goddess, Ama-terasu, is believed to be an ancestress of the imperial family of Japan. The rationalistic, educated classes do not take as much part in the pilgrimages as do the artisan class. The working people in Tokyo and Kyoto and Osaka believe, however, that they may find difficulty in obtaining a livelihood unless they invoke the protection of the goddesses at Ise, and the peasants are even more devout believers.

Thanksgiving WE give thanks-

For the education we call life, which in many ways and by methods planned beyond our wisdom leads us to purity, freedom and power. For the defeats of ambition and plans which, if realized, would wreck the highest possibilities of our natures. For the pressure of work and respon-sibilities which holds us in our places and steadies us under the allurements of ease and luxury. For the trials which deepen our affection and enlarge our sympathies.

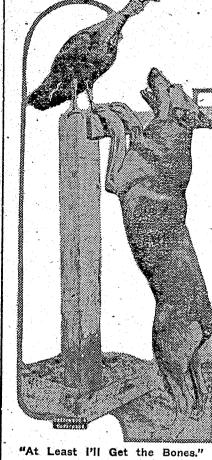

For the sweetness and happiness of love, the inspiration of duty, the joy of self-denial and service. For the privilege of forgetting our-selves in devotion and loyalty to others.

For the sense of the manifold sorrow of humanity which breeds in us infinite compassion and gives us the power of sympathy.

For a divine love which seeks, not our comfort, but our growth; and spares us no trial if only it can bring out the best in us.
